Performance Commentary

The improving outlook, courtesy of a strong vaccine-driven recovery, continues to be well received by equity markets, with the S&P reaching its highest level in history and value stocks continuing to outperform growth. With macroeconomic data all pointing towards a synchronised cyclical recovery, underpinned by record fiscal packages and new commitments to climate and infrastructure spending, inflation expectations have surfaced seeing bond yields rise and negative returns in fixed income.

During the quarter, the financials sector performed well with JPMorgan and Bank of Nova Scotia, leading contributors. The cyclical rally of value stocks continued its positive momentum into 2021 as COVID case numbers plateaued and the successful vaccine rollout increased national optimism. Against this backdrop, consumer discretionary stocks like Bridgestone Corp, the world's largest tire and rubber provider and Compass Group, the contract catering business also produced strong returns.

By contrast, the fixed income component of the fund detracted from performance over the quarter. The potential return of inflationary impulses sparked by unprecedented central bank asset purchase programmes, improving economic data and vaccine progress have weighed on Gilts and Corporate Bonds. In early January, the fund reduced its exposure, reinvesting the proceeds in equities.

During the quarter, the fund started a new position in Air Liquide, the French multinational supplier of industrial gases and services. Already the world's largest supplier, the company is well positioned to benefit from government efforts to fight climate change worldwide as they work to develop hydrogen solutions to both storage and fossil fuel alternatives.

Fund Outlook from Sarasin & Partners

To revive economies, policy makers continue to draw on their playbook from the 2008 Financial Crisis but with greater urgency and scale. Central banks globally have shifted towards a more dovish monetary policy, potentially seeing lower rates for longer and a willingness to sustain higher inflation. Trillions in fiscal stimulus has also been pledged, targeting societal inequality with ‘levelling up’ policies, Biden’s proposed infrastructure package and the UK’s ‘Green Budget’.

Over the long-term, we expect trends that the pandemic accelerated, such as e-commerce and working from home, are here to stay. Further opportunities will be driven by the shift to a more digital world, new automation, climate change mitigation and adaptation, demographic trends and by shifts in consumption patterns in both the emerging and the developed markets.

Beyond the pandemic, there are other challenges we are monitoring closely. Rising inequality is our greatest worry and the consequences of the virus disproportionately affecting lower skilled, lower income populations. While accelerating global demand is heaping pressure on already fragile supply chains and we expect these higher costs to be passed on to customers. Given the slack in the labour market, these price effects should be transitory, but in the medium term the question of whether the post-COVID economy merits structurally higher inflation will remain hotly debated.

Despite the challenges ahead, we remain positive on the prospects for a cyclical economic recovery in 2021 supported by international vaccination efforts. Ultimately, this combined with continued support from central banks should lead to an attractive environment for risk assets.
