Quarterly Update

DMS Stirling House Dynamic Fund

31st March 2026

Investment Objective

To achieve long term capital growth.

Investment Policy

The Fund will seek to achieve its investment objective by gaining exposure predominantly to global equities with some exposure to money market instruments, fixed interest securities, cash and near cash. The investment manager may allocate the Fund towards particular investment themes, geographic areas and sectors. The Fund may be expected to have a relatively high degree of volatility.

It is anticipated that the Fund may be almost wholly invested through collective investment schemes. As the Fund grows in size, it is intended that the Fund will invest less in collective investment schemes and instead invest to a greater extent or wholly directly (where permitted) into the asset classes set out above.

The Fund may also invest directly or indirectly in other transferable securities and collective investment schemes which may have exposure to alternatives such as commodities, loans, hedge funds, private equity and property.

Fund Performance Commentary

During the quarter, small holdings in the companies Essilor Luxottica, Chipotle Mexican Grill, and Moody's were sold along with investment trust holdings in Schiehallion, Syncona, Gresham House Energy and Sequoia Economic Infrastructure. Proceeds were reinvested into existing holdings in order to consolidate drivers of performance and increase liquidity.

Positive contributors in the quarter included the following stocks:

BAE, the aerospace and armaments supplier, released results in the quarter showing solid growth with a large order backlog underpinned by structural growth in defence spending.

ASML was another strong performer in the quarter as AI driven demand for semiconductor chips continued to drive sales of their key lithographic machines and expectations for growth in demand.

Deere, a manufacturer of agricultural equipment and other heavy machinery, performed well as earnings grew strongly and the company guided to future growth as tariff headwinds receded.

The following companies detracted from performance in the quarter:

Servicenow, a provider of automated workflow software, performed poorly as some investors feared agentic AI will erode software pricing after Anthropic released new versions of Claude Cowork.

LVMH, the luxury brands conglomerate, also lagged as a slowdown in demand was accelerated by the war in the middle east, a key sales geography.

Global Market Review from Oakham Wealth Management

Global markets began 2026 on a firmer footing, supported by resilient economic data and growing confidence that monetary policy would ease over time. While the Federal Reserve struck a more cautious tone than markets had initially hoped, the direction of travel towards lower interest rates remained intact. This provided a supportive backdrop for risk assets, particularly equities.

US markets were again dominated by technology, with companies exposed to artificial intelligence, semiconductors and cloud infrastructure extending their leadership. The narrative continues to shift from promise to delivery, with sustained capital investment translating into robust earnings. Markets remain highly concentrated, though there are signs of broader participation.

Geopolitics returned sharply to the forefront in the quarter. The war in Iran, including strikes and disruption around the Strait of Hormuz, injected volatility into energy markets and renewed inflation concerns. With a significant share of global oil supply passing through this route, even temporary disruption has systemic implications.

Elsewhere, Japan performed well, supported by corporate governance reforms, while emerging markets in Asia benefited from strong earnings and technology demand.

Fixed income markets were volatile as interest rate expectations shifted. Commodities were mixed with energy prices driven by geopolitics, while the gold price remained resilient, supported by central bank demand and uncertainty.

Looking ahead, geopolitical and policy uncertainty is likely to continue to cause volatility in financial markets. However, longer term structural drivers - particularly in AI and digital infrastructure - continue to support the outlook for equities.
