Fund Performance Commentary

Positive contributors in the quarter included the following stocks:

ASML rallied aggressively as chip makers increased capital spending to meet surging demand for AI related products.

Siemens also rallied on AI demand which in this case involves spending on electrical grid and power supply infrastructure.

Emerging markets significantly outperformed developed markets which helped our holding in iShares MSCI Emerging Markets perform well in the quarter.

The following companies detracted from performance in the quarter:

BAE Systems share price dropped after performing strongly over the preceding few years. The company maintained but didn't raise earning guidance during the quarter which disappointed some investors.

CME lagged after it announced the CEO would move to an Executive Chairman role and be replaced by the current CFO.

During the quarter, we sold small holdings in the following companies: Thermo Fisher, Netflix, 3IN, Uber, Costco, Bank of Ireland, Mercado Libre, Servicenow, Fortinet, Otis Worldwide, Eli Lilly, Biopharma Credit.

The proceeds were reinvested into new holdings iShares S&P 500 Equal Weight, TwentyFour Income Fund, Xtrackers MSCI World Healthcare ETF, SPDR Commodity ETF and to upweighting International Public Partnerships, The Renewables Infrastructure Trust and Hg Trust.

Global Market Review from Oakham Wealth Management

Global equity markets delivered strong returns in the second quarter of 2026, rebounding from the volatility that marked the start of the year. Sentiment improved as diplomatic progress eased concerns over the Iran conflict and the closure of the Strait of Hormuz. The framework agreement reached in June, paving the way for the strait to reopen, saw oil prices retreat and risk assets rally, with several major indices reaching new highs. While sporadic flare-ups persisted, markets largely took them in their stride.

The US market was again led by companies benefiting from artificial intelligence and digital infrastructure, particularly within semiconductors. Encouragingly, leadership broadened as the quarter progressed, with smaller companies and more cyclical sectors, including industrials and financials, participating in the advance. While concentration remains elevated, this broader participation provides a more durable footing.

Elsewhere, Japan continued to benefit from improving corporate governance, while parts of Asia saw robust earnings growth supported by investment in technology supply chains. Europe faced greater headwinds from energy costs and softer momentum, although globally diversified companies held up well.

Bond markets were more challenging. The inflationary impact of the earlier oil price spike prompted a reassessment of the interest rate outlook, pushing government bond yields higher and tempering expectations for policy easing. Gold gave back some gains as geopolitical fears receded.

The quarter was a reminder that markets often prove more resilient than headlines suggest. While geopolitical events can drive short-term volatility, diversified portfolios of high-quality businesses remain well placed to navigate uncertainty. The long-term drivers of equity returns - innovation, productivity gains, and sustained investment in artificial intelligence and digital infrastructure - remain firmly intact.
